Introduction

The Live Art Garden Initiative's This Week books are published annually and the 2011 edition is the 6th since the project commenced in 2006. This Week content is first published on the Initiative's website, prior to production and release of print-format yearbooks.

The curatorial brief for This Week content is for images or text-based work to be 'timely', either in relation to private or public events, or issues of the week. It is intended that the content created by the associate artists of the Initiative and submitted in any one week is web-published therein too. Online the project can be viewed here: www.liveartgardeninitiative.org.uk/thisweek.html

Lauren Goode, artist and project director of the Initiative conceived the This Week project, both its online and print publication dimensions, and is its most frequent contributor.

Watching

Artist: Lauren Goode

Around 7pm, Greenwich Park hilltop viewing point:

The thrumb of London's evening rush hour is muted here, and even more so when it's raining steadily like now, although lightly.

Watching the storm pass over London, from the west to east.

Another standing too I notice, removed and as distant as the view, shelters beneath these trees watching.

Beneath us on the Thames, now a sea-grey tarmac, a ship accompanies the storm's passage eastwards.

Miniature from this distance but actually large, as if a floating building and flanked by those on each bank-side, silently it passes, with a weightless slowness like that of clouds imperceptibly traversing the sky on some other day, as if untouched the ship departing.

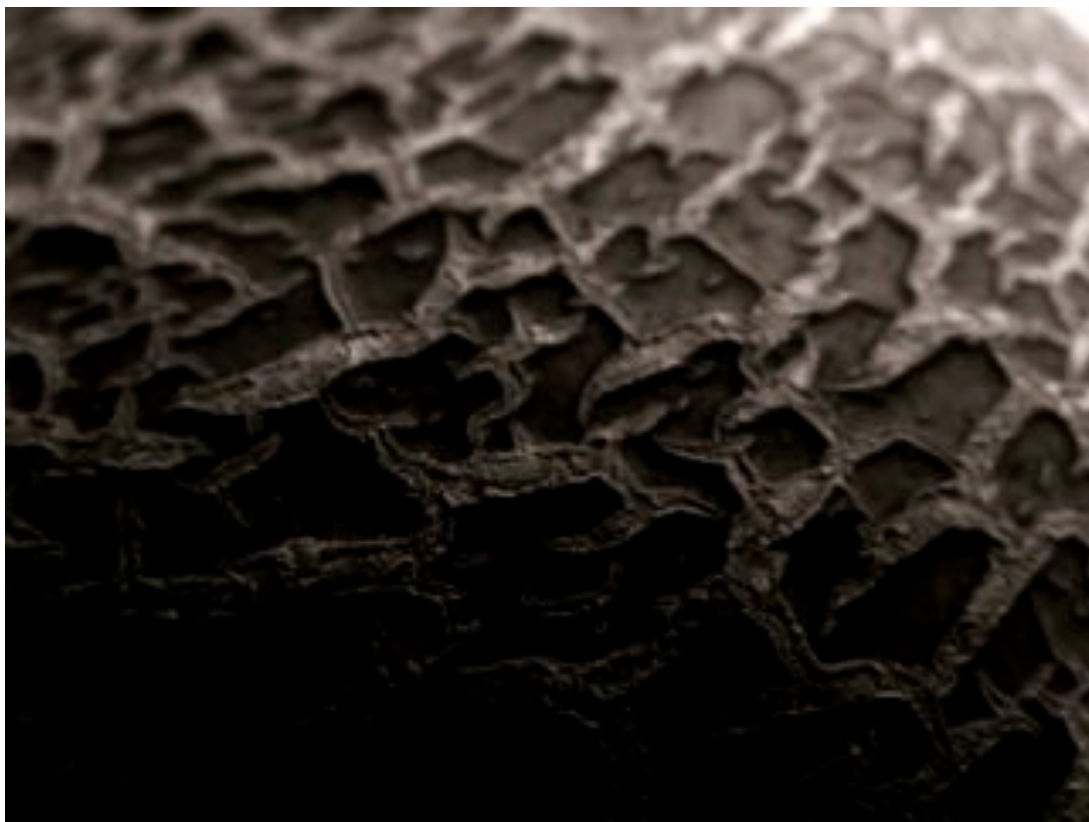

For now, this open space and city view is coated, being brushed with the sky, a dance of misty-ness and silvery-grey opacity.

With dampness, stillness and green-ness – a pausing
